Address by S. K Jain, Chief Guest

India and China are two major regional powers in Asia and the two populous countries among the fastest growing major economies in the world. India and China had historically peaceful relations for thousands of years of recorded history. But the tone of the relationship has varied in modern times. The two major countries have frequent models of disputes and economic nationalism in both countries is a major point of contention. The two countries failed to resolve their border disputes. Dr. S. K. Jain, chief guest of the seminar asserted that China is helpful as well as creating hindrances for India. As the Dragon is the National symbol of China, it represents the character of China itself. This is usually a common phenomenon to have disputes between the two countries which share the boundaries. We must take lessons from our past and should make a future strategy. There is a threat to the Indian economy in various industries due to Chinese products. Self-reliance is the only key to beat the economic terror of China. Dr. Jain discussed about BRICS, KWAT, GI SUMMIT and PANCHSHEEL 1954. China nowadays is planning for water-bombs which will bring droughts and floods in our country. Water-bombs are created by the construction of dams and rivers. He concluded his address by asserting that, India is a strong and determined country and we will not bow before China in any circumstances.

Address by Keynote Speaker, Dr. R.S Yadav

Dr. R.S Yadav, (Jain Vishwa Bharti Institute, Ladnun Rajasthan) said that we have to find out our interests alongwith compulsions we are facing. There is a dire need of new beginning. We need to take small steps to compete with China. As China needs us we also need China. We must be analytical inspite of being critical. Instead of emotional evaluation, a critical analysis is more crucial. Time and space are the key factors for any analysis, and this is true in case of India and China. End of Cold war in 1991 changed the previous and current scenario as well. Different kinds of Economic Issues are emerging currently in both countries. On the same time, we realize that China is both co- operative and conflicting. But why it is so? This topic can also be a base or theme of any research for scholars. Economic relations are boosted because of trade. One must be self reliant or go with the flow. Inter dependence syndrome is always and can never be avoided. We have to frame policies as per our interests as China will make policy as per its own interest. It is necessary to understand the current perspective. It will lead us to help in framing future strategies. India and China needs subtle diplomacy to settle disputes as U.S is also creating problems. Every policy must be made keeping in view our own domestic aspects. First of all we must resolve border issues and secondary we must focus on economy.
